

Dear KHN students,

Book Recommendation: “Night of the New Magicians”

Written by Mary Pope Osborne

I am so happy to have read this book. I would like to thank Ms. Ho Lai Yee who lent this book to me. This is a very good book. You can learn Jack and Annie’s, brother and sister, saving four scientists adventures. How they completed their mission and finally found that it was a valuable experience for them. Inside this book, you will meet the following four men. They are:

1. Alexander Graham Bell (inventor of the telephone),
2. Thomas Alva Edison (inventor of the incandescent light bulb),
3. Louis Pasteur (inventor of the process of pasteurisation and also developed vaccines for several diseases), and
4. Gustave Eiffel (architect who built the Eiffel tower in Paris France).

They are all great man in their own field. Do want to know the magic of their success? I am sure you will possess your own success if you know the secrets of success. Please read the book and tell or write to me when you find them out.

The Principal

25th April, 2013

